25X1

Egypt-Jordan: Nasir has assured Jordan of his intention to continue to work closely with Amman on attempts to resolve the Middle East impasse.

Jordanian leaders recently became concerned by the ambivalence of Egypt on certain policy issues affecting Jordan. Last week King Husayn sent a delegation led by Prime Minister Talhuni to Cairo to clarify the Egyptian position. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] the delegation said that the mission was extraordinarily successful.

The Jordanians' fears of policy differences between Amman and Cairo appear to have been temporarily assuaged by Nasir's assurances. More instances of irritation could well arise, however, as popular pressures compel Nasir--whatever his real views--to make more public statements supporting the Palestinian commandos, whose operations from Jordan continue to pose serious problems for King Husayn.
